

Precision International Introduces New QR Code System

Yaphank, New York - August 2016 - Precision International has recently introduced their new QR code system. It will help installers get the information they need, when they need it, regarding transmission kits. The QR codes have been added to the back of the packaging and can be scanned by any Smartphone. By accessing the QR codes, all pertinent information, for the unit at hand, is easily accessible in one space. There is no need to call and listen to an operator or sift through hours of research online—Precision has put everything in one simple place.

Beyond QR codes, Precision International has their own app available for free download. Just search “Precision International Kit Finder” in the app store on a mobile device. The app is a great resource for finding the exact kit an installer would need in a few easy clicks. An installer can select the make, model, engine and year and the available kits for that type of vehicle. Select the appropriate kit, and a list of distributors who carry it will come up. Then, select the distributor closest to the installer and they can call them directly within the app! In addition to locating a kit, the app has tons of tech tips, YouTube videos and other valuable resources for installers.

This easy-to-use technology will benefit installers, both customers and original equipment manufacturers. For more information, please contact the Precision International team.
